CIVIC PARTY FOR GUARDS OUTLINED

Heads Of Community Groups
Named Committee To Guide
Farewell Reception Monday

Heads of civic and fraternal groups of the community have been named as a general committee to guide arrangements for the civic program and farewell party on Monday night at the high school auditorium honoring Company D, 115th Engineers, who will leave shortly for one year of training at Camp San Luis Obispo.

This is according to an announcement by George E. Faugsted, chairman of the committee for El Dorado Post No. 119, American Legion, which took the initiative to sponsor the farewell reception as a public community event.

"Following the short program, we will have a dance," Faugsted announced, "and Red's Rhythm Rascals will play for dancing. Of course, not everyone will care to dance. Many will just want to visit with the men, and they will be at liberty to do this while the general dancing and reception is in progress."

The chairman said that the program for the evening has been outlined but has not been definitely assembled.

"The high school band will be present and Boy Scouts will advance the Colors," he explained. "Our speaking program will include short talks by a few of our civic and official leaders on behalf of the community and, perhaps, a response by Captain Weber."

"We believe that the ends of the evening will be best served by the opportunity afforded through the community gathering for the many friends of the men to have a few words with them personally and wish them God-speed as they begin their year of training."

Reports from various section and committee chairmen were received and filed; events for the month were discussed and final action was taken on them.

Mrs. Alice Wilson, delegate to the Tri County Convention held at Loomis on February 28th submitted her report in writing and in her absence, the report was read by the alternate delegate, Mrs. E. D. Golden.

The guest speaker at the convention was Mrs. Thomas Richards, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, who has recently returned from a meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Washington, D. Much community interest is being centered in the fashion show and tea to be given at the clubhouse on Friday, March 7th at 2:30 p. m., and the committee in charge promises the public a very delightful afternoon. Living models will appear wearing the latest and most exclusive styles in suits, costumes, sports clothes with all appropriate accessories, presenting a very fine opportunity for feminine fancy to observe what the really well dressed woman is wearing for all occasions.

Entertainment features will also be provided, including vocal solos by Mrs. L. T. Cook and others, instrumental numbers and classic dances by a class of small girls.

Tea and delicious refreshments will be served by a group of high school girls, members of Miss Olsen's class.

Merchants cooperating with the club committee in this fashion display are, Albert Simon of the Quality Shop, Mrs. F. M. Wudell, W. A. Matlocks and the Mayden Shop.

Reservations are to be made with the secretary, Mrs. Euell Gray.

The travel section will meet on Tuesday, March 11th to continue with the Pan American study with Mrs. M. P. Bennett and Mrs. E. D. Golden as chairmen.

Mrs. W. L. Amstalden, chairman of program day announced that a speaker has been obtained to address the club on Conservation at the next meeting on March 18th.

A Red Cross sewing project for the club was announced by Mrs. Phil Voiz, co-chairman with Mrs. Ogden Hook in this new undertaking, and as this is to be sponsored by the club, all those desiring to participate are requested to contact either Mrs. Voiz or Mrs. Hook.

The president announced that the spring flower show, another of the club activities, is being called to the attention of the public by the president who wants everyone to bear these two dates in mind.

JOHN J. POTTS CLAIMED BY DEATH; FUNERAL SERVICE SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Mr. Potts had not been well for several years past although it was only within recent weeks that his illness advanced to a critical stage. At that time he moved from his home at Camino to Placerville to reside with his son, and to be nearer medical treatment.

Deceased was a native of Dayton, Missouri, and came to California more than fifty years ago, settling first at Boulder Creek, in Santa Cruz County. He moved to Camino in 1907.

Mr. Potts is survived by four sons and one daughter. They are, Earl C. Potts, of Placerville; Edwin L. Potts, Gerald D. Potts and Allen D. Potts, of Camino; and Mrs. Ruby Perry, of Fair Oaks. One other son, Norman H. Potts, passed away in France during the World War.

SUDDEN ILLNESS REVEALS MARRIAGE OF COUPLE FROM PLACERVILLE

Friends learned on Tuesday that Miss Mary Hughes, of the Placerville telephone office, and Glenn Shultz, formerly employed at Mac's Jumbo Fountain of Youth and at the Cannon Chevrolet agency were married on January 23 in Nevada.

The couple had intended to keep their marriage secret but Mr. Shultz, who recently has been employed by the Capital Chevrolet Co. at Sacramento, became suddenly ill and Mrs. Shultz was called to Sacramento, remaining at his bedside so many hours that it was necessary for her to ask for temporary relief from her telephone duties.

Then the secret was out. While the many friends of the couple join in wishing them every happiness, the announcement of their marriage is accompanied by the report that Mr. Shultz was operated upon Wednesday at a Sacramento hospital. It is hoped that his recovery will be complete in due time.

Mrs. Hughes is a sister of Mrs. C. J. MacMurray.

William Stearns was a caller on Wednesday from Coloma.

BALKAN WAR CAULDRON BOILING

Region Sizzles With War
Moves As Japs Mass Troops
And Ships Off South China

By HARRISON SALISBURY
United Press Staff Correspondent
The Balkans sizzled with war moves today and in the Far East Japan mobilized a mighty land and sea force for possible adventures in the South Pacific.

Great Britain broke diplomatic relations with Bulgaria in a contemptuous note which charged that the little Balkan had put its independence in the trusteeship of Adolf Hitler. That, said the British, had set back Bulgarian civilization 100 years.

Here is the situation as it affected Balkan countries:

Bulgaria: British end relations; Germans report occupation proceeding.

Turkey: Considers message from Adolf Hitler; Belgrade hears Turkey might take over protection of Greek throne, thus forcing Germany to move against Turkey in any attempt to attack Greece.

Rumania: Gen. Ion Antonescu confers at Vienna with Marshal Hermann Goering.

Jugoslavia: Axis pressure increasing to bring Belgrade into tripartite alliance.

Greece: Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden still in Athens; continued insistence by Greeks that they will resist no matter what pressure Germany brings to bear.

Russia: Moscow silent but its bombshell of non-support of Bulgaria's tieup with Germany was expected to have repercussions as the news percolates through the censorship to the pro-Russian Bulgarian peasants; no clue to the Soviet attitude toward Turkey.

The Japanese were said to have

Representatives Of Post Accept Assignment For Year On Tuesday

At the invitation of the Board of Supervisors, El Dorado Post No. 119, American Legion will present the 1941 County Fair.

Members of the post met Tuesday with the Board of Supervisors and accepted the request of the county board that the post take charge of the exposition again this year.

George E. Faugsted, chairman of the board of directors of the county fair association, said that an organization meeting of the fair board will be called in the near future.

A rumor had been heard that the veterans' organization, which has been in charge of presenting the county fair each year since its inception, had expressed a desire to be relieved of the assignment.

Members of the fair board, questioned about the report, said that the veterans' unit has agreed to present the fair again this year; implying that beyond this year, some change might be asked.

Red Cross Chapter Calls Attention To Extent Of Production Section Work

Officers of El Dorado County Red Cross chapter this week made public figures showing the extent of the work of the production department of the chapter, which has been meeting weekly under the supervision of Mrs. Edith Rantz.

Mrs. Rantz has been chairman of the production section for nine years and at the recent annual meeting of the chapter expressed a desire to be relieved of that responsibility.

According to A. W. Wilson, secretary of the Red Cross chapter, the production section of the chapter during the past year has made a total of 1,232 garments.

These included 122 sweaters, 106 dresses, nineteen shirts and twenty-two complete layettes, made of materials furnished by the Red Cross by women of El Dorado County who contributed a total of 3,556 hours of work in the production department during the year.

In summarizing the production department work for the year, the secretary adds that "Mrs. Rantz desires to express her appreciation to the ladies of the city and county who have given of their time and energy so freely."

PASSPORT TO PERIL

In Miami, Jim Talbot, adventurer meets James Long, his exact double. Long is about to sail for Costanagua, Central American republic, in response to a mysterious appeal from Zachary Webb, veteran soldier of fortune. When unknown plotters lay Long, Jim assumes his identity and sails in his place. Aboardship, he discovers that a fellow passenger, Strade, is the man who wants "Long" out of the way. He falls in love with Strade's beautiful secretary, Vara, but turns against her when, after he reaches Costanagua, she lures him into a trap. He learns from Zach Webb and his friend, Don Jose Alvarado de Montes, that Strade is fomenting a revolution to gain control of nitrate deposits for a group of European munitions makers. Long's dead father is a national hero, and Zach believes that his son—supposedly Jim—can turn the natives against Strade. When they set fire to a warehouse where Strade has a cache of munitions, Jim discovers that Vara is inside and rushes to her rescue.

CHAPTER XX

DIMLY, Jim heard Zach shouting behind him. "Jim! Jim! It's suicide to go in there! You can't save her! You'll only kill yourself! Jim! You fool!"

Others were shouting. Men clutched at him, tried to hold him back, but he knocked them aside, and raced on to the doorway of the warehouse.

A sheet of flame blocked his way. He ducked his head, covered his face with his forearms and plunged through into the smoke-filled interior. He choked on the smoke, gasped for breath.

"Vara!" he shouted hoarsely.

There was no answer.

As he looked about wildly, there was a terrific, rending crash—and a section of one of the flaming walls collapsed inward, throwing sparks and burning wood the length of the room.

In the fierce glare, Jim's smarting eyes, searching in all directions, saw no sign of Vara in the lower part of the warehouse. She must be upstairs! Trapped there!

Through dense clouds of suffocating smoke, through searing heat, he staggered on between the rows of crated machinery, round which tongues of flame were licking, until he reached the stairway at the rear. He stumbled up it...

HE FOUND Vara near the top of the stairs—lying crumpled on the floor. The room was thick with smoke but, as yet, the flames had not reached her.

Jim stooped and lifted the unconscious girl into his arms. Her head lolled back against his shoulder.

Looking toward the stairway, he saw that a mass of flame was now roaring up it as a chimney. That avenue of escape was hopeless.

He staggered to the broken window through which he had leaped last night. Outside, the fire had made the area around the warehouse as light as day. He could see the group of men off there in the distance.

He shouted to them. He saw Zach and Don Jose, as they caught sight of him, start running toward the building, followed by others. They were gesticulating and shouting. Jim couldn't hear what they said, but there was only one thing to do—and not a second to waste.

Holding Vara over his shoulder, so that she was wrapped around him, he got a firm hold on her, then squeezed through the window—and leaped.

The shrubbery beneath broke their fall—but there were flames all about them. With the strength of desperation, Jim struggled to his feet, with Vara in his arms, and stumbled blindly as far away from the building as he could before his knees buckled under him, and he sank to the ground.

Then, he felt hands grasping him—lifting him and carrying him to safety.

"Vara," he gasped. "Never mind me! Get her!"

"It's all right, son," he heard Zach's voice say. "Others are taking care of her."

A few minutes later, an explosion rent the air. They had not clear of the warehouse not a moment too soon...

IN THE CAR, as they hurried away from the scene of destruction, Jim partially recovered from the effects of the smoke and fire.

"Vara!" he gasped. "Never mind out on the back seat, was still unconscious."

No one spoke until they were halfway back to Cochila.

Then, Zach said brusquely, "You're a benighted fool, son—but I'm proud of you!"

Don Jose solemnly nodded his head in agreement. "Yes, Jeemie—not many men would have done so brave and reckless a thing!"

Jim said nothing. He knew that he couldn't have done anything else.

Presently, Zach spoke again—slowly. "What are we going to do with—er—the young lady?"

Jim was surprised at the question. "Do? Why—uh—aren't we taking her to Don Jose's house? What else can we do under the circumstances?"

Don Jose looked at him. "I am not inhospitable, Jeemie, but—under the circumstances, as you put it—I think it would be very unwise to take her there. She is Senor Strade's secretary—and she is the young lady who, only last night, lured you into a trap."

Jim frowned. "I know—but—good lord! What does that matter now? She's unconscious—ill! And through our doing!" He suddenly got angry. "Why, we all but blew her to kingdom come, and now you callously talk about abandoning her! I suppose you'd like to dump her on the side of the road!"

"Now, wait a minute!" Zach barked. "We can find out where she lives and take her there."

"And how would you explain what happened to her?" Jim demanded.

"Well..." Zach hesitated. "Besides," Jim cut in, "since we're responsible, it seems to me there's only one thing for us to do—look after her ourselves until we're sure she's all right!"

HE didn't care what Vara had done to him in the past, or what she might do in the future. For the moment, all that mattered was that she was helpless and injured—and he meant to take care of her!

"Well," Zach was saying, "perhaps you're right. I don't suppose she can do any harm..."

"Hardly!" said Jim, looking toward Vara's unconscious form.

As his eyes dwelt on her, lying there so white and still, his heart was wrenched. Despite all that had happened, he knew he still loved her. In this softened mood, he found himself excusing her—telling himself that perhaps he had misjudged her. After all, she herself was probably not responsible for her treacherous acts—she must be in Strade's power, had to do what he told her to do. Jim recalled how she had aided him in escaping from the Sea Gull, and softened still further. That, he told himself, showed her true character—her later duplicity was Strade's doing.

When they reached Don Jose's house, Jim gently gathered her into his arms and carried her in. In the hallway, he came face to face with Dolores. The girl, at sight of Vara, gave a little shriek, and stepped back.

The Bully-Boy

Correcting Child Who Mauls Playmates

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, P.L.D.

"Dear Dr. Myers: Your advice in your daily column has been of great value to me and when the occasion arises I frequently quote you.

"Before I present my problem, I'll give you in brief such parts of my little boy's rearing as I feel will help you understand his general characteristics. He was two years old last July. In other words, as well as my own, he was a model baby. I always held him while giving him the bottle and gave him still plenty of love and cuddling simply because I was and am so very fond of him. I followed the doctor's instructions in caring for him and he says I've done a good job on him. He is happy, big, husky, and healthy and yet refined of features. He is apparently bright.

"He is very fond of books and will even stop playing to come on my lap with one or more of his books for me to read to him. My reading consists of a synopsis of the printed matter under the picture with the accompanying sounds. The Mother Goose I leave to his mother. I take him out for at least two hours every afternoon and sometimes in the morning though it means I must drop whatever I am doing. The yard is not fenced in. I do not

A Play Problem

"He enjoys going places, particularly the park and playgrounds. We also have fun singing and dancing together. Also he likes to help make beds and roll pastry, etc.

"We live in a rented upstairs apartment on a street that has a lot of heavy traffic. I take him out for at least two hours every afternoon and sometimes in the morning though it means I must drop whatever I am doing. The yard is not fenced in. I do not interrupt his play with the neighbor children except when I feel it necessary so as to prevent some one from getting hurt. The neighbor children now are girls aged 2½ years and 15 months. Previously he played with some older children who were of a more robust nature than our present neighbors. Now my problem is: How can I break my son of giving these children a hard shove with no apparent reason for so doing? He puts his arms around them and loves them and is always eager to be with them and they with him. I spank him every time I see him push the girls. They just cry a little and won't push him in return. Should I just continue the spankings?

"Before I married I taught Junior High Science in a large city. Whereas, I may know a little about the behavior of the adolescent and how to help him I am rather at a loss as to what to do in the above problem of my little boy. Please help me."

The Doctor's Solution

My reply: You have done so well in bringing up your child that I hesitate to offer any suggestions. You are right in giving him instant pain, preferably a spanking, when he pushes the little girls; only you need to be more vigilant. Also the more kind things you can induce him to do for them at other times the less he will incline to push them.

But he needs to be with boys or girls his size whom he can't push around and who will punish him for pushing them.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Please tell me how to handle a two year old girl who is inclined to be stubborn and refuses to pay any attention when told to do something? Should I ignore it much of the time and ask her to do things instead of telling her to do them?

A. Yes; and when you ask her let her choose, but learn skill in winning her to comply; there will be no occasion for punishment then. But when you tell her not to do something punish her immediately if she fails to obey.

MODERNIZATION SHOWS GAINS

Sharp Pick-Up In New Home Proposals Shown During First Month Of Year

New-home construction applications under the FHA program last month showed a sharp increase over a year ago, Federal Housing Administrator Abner H. Ferguson announced recently.

A total of 14,388 small-home mortgages aggregating $67,656,550, covering new homes to be constructed under FHA inspection, were selected for appraisal during January. This represented an increase of 33 per cent in both number and amount over January 1940, when 10,824 new home mortgages totaling $51,035,950 were selected for appraisal.

The volume of new home mortgage insurance applications selected was 13 per cent larger than the $60-, 100,480 applications selected the month before. This was a considerably sharper pick up than occurred a year ago when the January volume was only 5 per cent over the preceding month.

Aided in part by more favorable weather conditions that last winter, new home construction started under FHA inspection last month showed a gain of 37 per cent over a year ago as contrasted with the 13 per cent gain shown in December.

The average weekly figure on new homes started under FHA inspection during January was 2,397, compared with 2,005 in December and 1,750 in January 1940. These figures exclude new small homes financed by loans insured under Title 1 of the National Housing Act.

Property improvement and modernization loans insured under Title 1 also showed gains over last year. A total of 53,983 such loans in the amount of $22,390,000 were reported for insurance during January, compared with $26,475,454 in December and $20,491,229 in January, 1940.

Studebaker Climatizer Demonstrator

A metropolitan Studebaker dealer devised this mobile display to demonstrate the comfort and even heat distribution made possible by Studebaker's exclusive heating-ventilating Climatizer. The doors of the 1941 Studebaker Commander were replaced by a transparent, weather-tight covering. After hours of touring snow-swept streets, the passengers testified that the Climatizer kept both front and rear compartments at constant summer temperatures. The "all-weather" Climatizer, located out of the way under the driver's seat, circulates fresh, filtered, warmed air and gives a complete change of air several times per minute. No stale air is re-circulated.

GEORGETOWN

Rainfall for March 1 was 1.10 in., March 2, 1.30, and March 3, .50 in., for a total to date of 42.76 inches.

March came in like a lion and we are hoping it goes out like a lamb. Friday morning about 10:30 the wind blew the galvanized roof off the Tourist Garage, John Halliday, operator, was planning on going on the roof when it happened—lucky for him that he didn't go at once. The funny side of it was: Mrs. Halliday was calmly reading "Gone with the Wind" when she heard the rip-roaring noise and looked up to see the roof gone. Their living quarters joins the garage and only a small section over the apartment was left.

George C. Wiley lost the roof off his garage and barn about the same time. Numerous trees were blown down and one of the big windows in the upper room at the school house blew in. The storm continued Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Flora Parmeter and two children of Vallejo are here for a few weeks occupying a cabin on lower Main Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Francis had all their family home for the weekend. Sunday they motored to Soda Springs, Placer county to spend a day in the snow which continued to fall all day. Urtel Francis returned Sunday to Vallejo where he is employed. Monday morning Elvin left for Placerville wearing his uniform for the first time. He goes in training for ten days before entering the army for a year. Hazel and her husband, Mr. Strickland, returned to their home in Sacramento Monday evening.

carried out an impressive series of troop landings in Kwangtung province, in South China just north of Indo China. A force estimated at 70,000 troops was said to be concentrated on Hainan Island and a fleet of 100 warships was crushing southward of the Indo Chinese coast.

Two deadlines for Indo China were said to have been set. One was 10 a. m. EST today by which hour Tokyo expects the French to agree to the cessations to Thailand. The other is 10 a. m. EST Friday by which hour a full settlement of the Thailand controversy is demanded.
